Your first steps with Dvorak.

A small daily routine for standard US Dvorak. Start slowly, keep QWERTY for work, and build from accurate movements.

01 Find your home row

Rest your left fingers on A O E U and your right fingers on H T N S. Your index fingers also reach inward to I and D. The physical F/J bumps mark U and H.

Try: aoeu htns the this hand sound

Recall each position before checking the chart. Favor deliberate presses over fast guesses.

02 Keep it to about 10 minutes

2 MIN Recall the home row
Find U and H, then type the home-row drill above slowly.

6 MIN Practice a small lesson
Use a gradual Dvorak tutor. Add a few new keys at a time.

2 MIN Try unfamiliar words
Notice repeated mistakes. Revisit one difficult key next time.

03 Make the switch gradually

Keep QWERTY available for deadlines. Once you know the Dvorak positions, try a short note in an ordinary editor. Add punctuation and test copy, paste, undo and your usual shortcuts before moving more work over.

Check progress with similar text and test settings. Look for fewer errors and pauses; there is no fixed deadline for getting your old speed back. Stop if practice feels uncomfortable.

Practice: keyboardlayout.app/dvorak

Setup, shortcuts and the full guide: keyboardlayout.app/learn/dvorak

The browser simulator changes practice only, not your computer's input settings.